

We will discuss the status of the Silk Project; at the end of March, five countries were connected. We will describe the problems and successes in bringing up the network, show brief measurements on the current usage and discuss the interest of other bodies in further extension of the network. The early experience of the use of multimedia will be highlighted.