This speaker will present SPOCP - public domain software for a middleware service for policy-based authorisation control. The trend towards increased self-service makes such a service an important security component. We have been working with this for some time and will present the lessons learnt.