We present a prototype of an interactive multimedia news system featuring a talking virtual character to present the news on the Web. Talking virtual characters are graphical simulations of real or imaginary persons capable of human-like behaviour, most importantly talking and gesturing.