

Astronomy is an ancient science that quickly took advantage of computers when they became available. In the nineteen seventies, astronomers were at the forefront of networking development, pioneering the use of telecommunications to exchange ideas and data. Astronomers intend to use the power of the Grid paradigm to help them solve their new scientific challenges .