Multicast monitoring tools are still immature and not widely deployed. This article describes the efforts to provide an integrated, advanced multicast management platform, composed of Multicast Beacon and MUVI applications. The architecture, new functionality and use scenarios of the management platform are discussed in detail.