

The presentation will focus on research undertaken into the measurement of performance differences between XML and Abstract Syntax Notation One (ASN.1) with its Basic Encoding Rules (BER), for signed and unsigned attribute certificates. Previous research has been conducted in the area in comparing the two notations but no prior performance analysis has been conducted. Overall we carried out twenty sets of client/server performance tests. We also measured system performance indicators.