

Luca Deri is currently sharing his time between NETikos S.p.A. and the University of Pisa where he is a lecturer in the CS department. He received his PhD. in Computer Science with a thesis on Software Components from the University of Berne in 1997. He previously worked as research scientist at the IBM Zurich Research Laboratory and as research fellow at the University College of London. His professional interests include network management and monitoring, software components and object-oriented technology. <deri@ntop.org>