Roman Lapacz received a M.Sc. degree in Computer Science from the Poznan University of Technology in 2000. He works at the Poznan Supercomputing and Networking Center in the Network Department as the network application developer and software development research coordinator. His main IT research interests are network technologies, application designing (object modelling) and Java language. <romradz@man.poznan.pl>

Artur Binczewski received the M.Sc. degree in Computer Science from the Poznan University of Technology in 1993. His research interests concern computer networks, routing, multicasting and management. He is the Manager of Network Department at Poznan Supercomputing and Networking Center.

Radoslaw Krzywania is the 5th year student of Poznan University of Technology and is going to grade with Master Thesis in 2003. He works as a software engineer in Poznan Supercomputing and Networking Center. He is interested in multicasting , software engineering, Java language and IPv6 technologies.