

Biography

Sunčana Kukulja Taradi is assistant professor of physiology and immunology at the University of Zagreb Medical School. In 1996. she started a web-site “Interactive Physiology”. The site was rewarded with the second price by the jury of the Croatian Academic Research Network(CARNet) Users Conference CUC99. The site was also included into 100 best croatian web sites in the year 1999 by the PCchip magazine. Since 2001 she is the chef-editor of the official web-site of the Medical school in Zagreb (www.mef.hr) .

She is teaching graduate and postgraduate students about online education and telemedicine.

In cooperation with CARNet, Suncana Kukulja Taradi created a distance learning project “Interactive educational module of acid-base balance in humans”. She is the chief-editor of the Referral centers web.

Milan Taradi is a professor of physiology and immunology at the Faculty of Medicine in Zagreb. He is the author of numerous online educational materials and interactive tools in the field of physiology and immunology (www.mef.hr/~mtaradi/) as well as the main collaborator on the “Interactive Physiology”. He is teaching graduate and postgraduate students about online education and telemedicine.

Milan Taradi is a co-worker in the project “Interactive educational module of acid-base balance in humans” sponsored by the Croatian Academic Research Network (CARNet), and in 2001 he has been appointed to the function of CARNet coordinator for his institution. He is the leader of the Reference center for self-assessment and assessment in e-learning.